

Mani Santos

Mani Santos was born and raised in Brazil, where soccer is a way of life. He played professionally in Brazil from 1970 to 1980. He also played college and professional soccer in the U.S. from 1981 to 1984. He coached professionally in Asia and Brazil from 1985 to 1998. Since 1999 he has been a youth soccer coach in the Maryland, Virginia and Washington D.C. area. He lives in Maryland with his wife and two children.

Mani Santos holds a Master's Degree from Rice University in Houston, Texas and National Coaching Licenses from Brazil, England, and the U.S.

My Philosophy

"Every team, summer camp and winter clinic that I have coached, I try to pass on the experiences gleaned from my soccer back-ground. This knowledge comes from almost fifty years of playing and coaching soccer at all levels. My goal is to teach not only techniques but also to focus on the individual talent and creativity of the players. Of course I want them to play with discipline, respect and teamwork. However, the most important thing is to develop not only a good soccer player but also a great person!"

The Zico Center

The Zico Center is a training center outside Rio, named for its founder. Zico is sometimes referred to as "the white Pele." Zico is now coaching Japan's national team. The Zico center trains hundreds of Brazilians whose goal is to play professional soccer. The coaches themselves are former professional players who love the game

Winter Futsal Clinics

Players will learn and practice individual soccer techniques and also scrimmage to simulate the high pressure of game situations using the 5v5 futsal format. Futsal is the best indoor soccer game, because it develops and improves the basic skills, such as dribbling and passing.

The Futsal Winter Clinics will be held from December through March.

The registration form is on the website at

Registration begins in January

Summer Camps

Summer Camps will be held during the last two weeks of June and first two weeks of July.

The summer program is designed to develop confidence, individual talent and foster creativity in the player. This represents the "Brazilian style" of training.

“I cannot imagine a better way to help a team or player move to the next level in soccer. The training and bonding that occurred no doubt helped our team move to the first division where they now are. My son liter-ally cannot wait to return this coming summer”

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

What is a typical day for the players? After awakening, the boys eat breakfast and re-lax until the first training session at 10am which lasts until 12 noon. They then rest, have lunch and relax until 2pm when they train for another two hour session or play a game against a local team.

Do the families see the boys daily? Most days they do after the afternoon session, how-ever this can be individualized for each team.

What is the lodging and food like at Zico?

The lodging is dormitory style and the food is prepared on site, it is both nutritious and tasty!

What do the boys learn? The coaches first assess the team’s strengths and weaknesses and then design a program to help the team/ players improve. Training is both serious but enjoyable.

What teams do they play? The teams are from local soccer clubs and they range from excellent to superb. The coaches try to match teams for competitive matches. The home teams will sometimes ‘take it down a notch’ if the coaches ask them to. That said, the teams are a treat to watch and play.

Will it actually help play upon returning to the US? We have seen players “catch soccer fever” here and they will have an opportunity to play against terrific competition. Teams return with increased sense of purpose and more confidence.

Do you recommend parents accompany children on the trip? Absolutely! Not only is it a wonderful trip for the family, but it is important for the children to feel their families support. Having said that, a child may go without parents by prior arrangement.
